

THE RESPONSIBILITIES OF A BOROUGH PRESIDENT OF BROOKLYN

The Borough President plays an important role in New York City politics. Brooklyn Borough President Eric Adams adjusts the mic at a hearing.

Along with the mayor, the comptroller and the president of the City Council, each of whom had two votes, the borough presidents each had one vote on the New York City Board of Estimate, which decided matters ranging from budgets to land use. Brooklyn was here long before they set sail, and if anything they need to be part of the greatness of Brooklyn and add their flavor, but not destroy what we are. The initial city charter established the five borough president offices with terms of four years, coinciding with the term of the mayor. The Daily News editorial board said that their offices were characterized by "powerless irrelevance. The last significant power of the borough presidents, to appoint members of the New York City Board of Education, was abolished when the Board of Education became the Department of Education on June 30, Adams, a former police captain, is part work space, part gym. Borough presidents are currently elected by popular vote to four-year terms, and can serve up to three consecutive terms 12 years. I hope that we continue to build our infrastructure in a smart way. When you envision Staten Island in five years, what do you hope to see? As part of the consolidation, all town and county governments within the city were dissolved, and their powers were given to the city and the boroughs. They generally act as advocates for their boroughs at the mayoral agencies, the city council, the New York State government, public corporations, and private businesses. People come to Queens from every part of the planet. They appoint community board members. How do you get on a community board? Powers included membership and voting on the their borough's local boards although without veto powers, an office in the borough hall, and appointive powers for a secretary, assistants, and clerks, which quickly became a source of political patronage. The two major remaining appointments of the borough presidents are one member each on the City Planning Commission [16] and one member each of the Panel for Educational Policy. With that comes a huge responsibility to make sure that the avenues to a better future are open to them.
